Fresh Window is pleased to present You Say You Know You Will You Do, a solo exhibition of recent works by multi-disciplinary artist Helmut Smits. Smits's observations translate in works that comment on society and situations in a frank and often humorous way. The artworks in this exhibition are inherently clever observations that disrupt our perception of the everyday. These objects are freed from the slavery of utility and the anxiety of performing their daily utilitarian purposes. The artist suspends this sense of urgency that the objects might experience in these daily routines and give the artworks the opportunity to be uplifted and transformed from being banal objects to extraordinary objects. It is through this liberation and appreciation of the everyday objects that we can find the extraordinary within our own everyday.
